

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

and you have not, by implication or direct statement, departed from your original standpoint of interested and unprejudiced observation. It was admirably done.

M. F. TURNER.

TORONTO, CANADA.

DISCUSSION OF IMMIGRATION WANTED

SIR,—A recent issue of your magazine contained a most excellent article on the German attitude. Your readers would surely appreciate just such a clear, fair, and sanely patriotic article, or series of articles, on the immigration and naturalization questions; surely there are a few who are far-sighted enough to picture to us the pitiful plight our country will be in unless immigration is restricted to exclude undesirable elements, and naturalization laws made effective enough to insure some degree of attempt at citizenship. We shall hope to see our best newspapers and magazines in the lead in questions of such vital importance.

C. I. R.

DOVER, N. J.

OUR HEATHENISH PROPAGANDA

SIR,—The profanity in your editorial department in the January number is entirely condemnable. I had been accustomed to passing your magazine on to a young man in whose prospects I am interested, but I draw the line at this January issue.

Why is it that whenever you print anything of a religious nature it is either off-color or avowedly infidel? To "The Man Jesus" you have now added "Saul of Tarsus." Are you giving us a series? How much fun do you get out of printing such stuff? That is, I suppose, you must get some fun out of them—I haven't sense enough to see any other reasons why you should engage in such heathenish propaganda.

JAMES W. MARSHALL.

JUNCTION CITY, ARK.